FRANK W. HODGDON, ONE OF ARLINGTON'S PROMINENT CITIZENS, HAS PASSED AWAY

The ADVOCATE of last week announced the passing of Frank W. Hodgdon, who died Friday morning, January 26th, just a few hours before this paper went to press, so that we were but able to give the news that this prominent citizen had succumbed to a shock, sustained about two weeks previous, at his home, 18 Wellington street, Arlington. A few days previous to his death, Mr. Hodgdon developed pneumonia, which at the time was not thought serious, but on the late afternoon of the day previous to his death, he had a sinking spell and Mr. Hodgdon's only brother, Dr. Andrew H. Hodgdon of Dedham, who had been assisting in attending his brother, was summoned and pronounced it hopeless case.

Mr. Hodgdon has had a long and honorable career, not only in Arlington, where he was born, January 12, 1856, but in the state where he has been in its employ as civil engineer, for 47 years. He was the older son by carelessness, stating that in 1922, there were 4000 forest fires, entailing a loss of four human lives and property damage of half a million dollars; Richard Ambrose, captain of the big pin bowling league team, who spoke briefly how they won the championship. Rev. E. A. Elliott, pastor of the Harvard Street M. E. Church of Cambridge, made a great hit with the audience with his stories, all of which he vouched for, even if they were fish stories; and William M. McMasters, publicity man, who put the members in a happy frame of mind, with his list of personal observations and experiences, while fishing in Canada, Newfoundland and Nova Scotia.

Over two hundred enjoyed the good things set before them at the banquet served by the Hardy Catering Company, and altogether it was an evening that will long live in the memory of the Association, made so by the splendid gift of "Brig" Young. The evening was closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

OVER TWO HUNDRED ATTEND
BANQUET OF MIDDLESEX
SPORTSMAN'S ASSN'

The annual banquet of the Middlesex Sportsman's Association, held on Thursday evening of last week, in the club house, was the most important event ever held by this organization, not because of the banquet but for the magnificent gift one of its members at this time presented the Association. In fact this article might well be headed, "The magnificent gift from Freeman N. Young to the Association." This gift represents a large sum of money and is the climax of the vast amount of work Mr. Young has put into the club since it took over the property of the Arlington Boat Club. To the members he is "Brig" Young. At this time Mr. Young made a declaration of trust, drawn up in proper legal form, placing 117 shares of Middlesex Sportsman's Corporation stock, valued at $25 per share, in the hands of trustees, with instructions to make a contract with the Middlesex Sportsman's Association, whereby they should use the club house at proper rental as long as they continued to exist and carry out the purposes for which the association was organized.

The deed of gift provides that the income of the 117 shares shall be used to retire outstanding shares of the corporation, and when that is accomplished, to use the income for the purposes for which the association was organized.

District Attorney Reading, who is president of the association, paid a splendid tribute to Mr. Young, for the interest he had taken in the association in announcing his generous gift, and reviewed the many improvements the donor had made on the club house, which would amount to enough blocks of stock, the president said to make the giver the largest stock holder in the association. But "Brig" has no such idea in mind and his gift to the association is outright, having been made because of his deep interest in the Middlesex Sportsman's Association and its members.

The members gave Mr. Young three rousing cheers and a tiger as President Reading closed his remarks and President Reading then presented Mr. Young with bouquet for Mrs. Young.

During the evening Dr. G. L. Baker of Somerville, entertained with a group of songs; Bert Clark of Waltham with an hour's round of laughter, and whose impersonations were excellent and his songs of the best; and Harvey Collins of Burlington, entertained with songs, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Collins.

The speakers of the evening were Arthur Clark, secretary of the Massachusetts Fish and Game Protective Association, who told of what the association is trying to do toward the preservation of fish and game; Charles O. Bailey, secretary of the state department of conservation, who spoke of the vast waste caused

TO THE VOTERS

As the time approaches for the annual election of town officials, it behoves the public to give serious thought to its choice of those who will conduct the affairs of the town for the next twelve months:

It is the rule, and not the exception, that the public is all too indifferent in selecting its representatives, whether national, state, or local;

that we have too many minority selections, and that those of us who seem the most indifferent are invariably the ones who are the most critical as to the conduct of public affairs.

Your public welfare is wholly within your own control, if you will but interest yourself in governmental affairs and register your verdict by the exercise of your franchise.

You have reached the time when conservatism was never more necessary, and that conservatism must start with you and in your home town, if you would wish it to penetrate your institutions.

At the request of numerous representative citizens, Mr. Charles B. Devereaux has consented to stand for re-election to the Board of Selectmen. Mr. Devereaux is a man of large business connections and possesses executive qualities which are highly necessary to public office. Any municipality is fortunate in having men of such type who are willing to accept public service.

With the realization that the type of our officials is only commensurate to our interest in them, it should be the desire of this town, at all times, to retain men of Mr. Devereaux's calibre in office, and make yearly efforts that such standards be upheld.

In comparison with towns and municipalities of like size, Arlington is exceptionally well governed. This applies to the past as well as the present.

The departments are efficient and the money appropriated is carefully expended. Exceptional effort each year will keep our town clean and free from the undesirable practices which are ever ready to creep in.

Mr. Devereaux has served you well for one term. We know him to be fair and exceptionally well qualified in every respect to perform the duties of the office and faithful to the interests of Arlington.

We heartily endorse him, and ask that he be returned to the Board of Selectmen at the March Election.

Mrs. Miley has been a cripple for the past seven years from a broken hip and since that time has been unable to walk, but this handicap never appeared to mar the happiness of her life and she was a source of inspiration and help to all who met her in her home, which has been made for the past five years with Mrs. Helen A. Seaver, in The Florence.

The funeral was held Sunday, January 28th, the devotional services being conducted by Rev. Henry S. Potter, D. D., minister of the First Baptist Church. Mrs. John M. Dick, rendered selections. FRANK W. HODGDON HAS PASSED AWAY thirty years to a day of that of his son.

Mr. Hodgdon attended Arlington schools and on graduating, entered Massachusetts Institute of Technology, being graduated from the same in 1876 with the degree of S. B. In the engineering line he became widely known and his opinions were constantly being secured on large engineering problems. Mr. Hodgdon was in charge of the building of the South Boston dry dock and of the Commonwealth pier, and was consulting engineer in the construction of the Cape Cod Canal. Since 1892 he has been in charge of all harbor development work. In the past 25 years he has served as consulting engineer on harbor development along the entire Atlantic coast, from Maine to Florida.

Mr. Hodgdon was employed by the Harbor Commissioners on improvement of the South Boston flats, where he served until 1878. In 1878 and 1879, he was engineer for the land commissioners and as such designated and superintended construction of pile platform at piers 1 and 2, now owned by the N. Y., N. H. & H. RR.

From 1879 to 1893 he was assistant engineer of the State Harbor and Land Commission and designed and superintended work in Boston Harbor and South Boston flats. From 1893 to Jan. 1912, he was chief engineer of the Harbor and Land Commission, in charge of all engineering work.

In 1897, Mr. Hodgdon was appointed by the late governor Wolcott, a member of the Commission on Topographical Survey and Map of Massachusetts, and in 1898 he was appointed as a member of the commission to determine the location of the boundary line between Massachusetts and New Hampshire. Since 1908, he had been consulting engineer for the Florida Coast Line Canal and Transportation Company, in construction of their big canal. In 1911, President Roosevelt appointed Mr. Hodgdon representative of Panama on the Commission of Engineers in the Costa Rica-Panama boundary arbitration.

For years Mr. Hodgdon had also been with the Water Department, Department of Public Works of this state, and was its head at the time of his death.

In his native town, Mr. Hodgdon has given his wide experience, having served as a member of the Water Department for a long period of years. The town laws in regard to these matters were in the main the work of Mr. Hodgdon, who was most painstaking in securing for the town the best laws possible. In fact he was keenly alive to the welfare of the town and his voice was often raised to give suggestions, and advice along matters of vital importance to the town. He has served on the Arlington Finance Committee. At the time of the changing of the town's form of government he was active and was one of those elected from his precinct (4), as a town meeting member for a three year term, which he held at the time of his death.

On October 14, 1886, Mr. Hodgdon married Grace Plumer, daughter of Captain William Plumer of Lexington, who was distinguished in the Civil War, in command of a company in Bedan's Sharp Shooters. They were married in the Church of Our Redeemer, in Lexington, and but for a few years, have always resided in Arlington. There were three children born to the couple, all of whom with the widow, survive him. They are Mrs. (Nancy) Henry Tattle, of Clinton, who is engaged in Social Service Work; Richard Hodgdon, who resides at the family residence on Wellington street, and Dr. Wellington Hodgdon, who is a successful practicing physician, in Pasadena, Cal. Besides the brother, Dr. Hodgdon, there is a sister, Miss Ellen W. Hodgdon of Arlington.

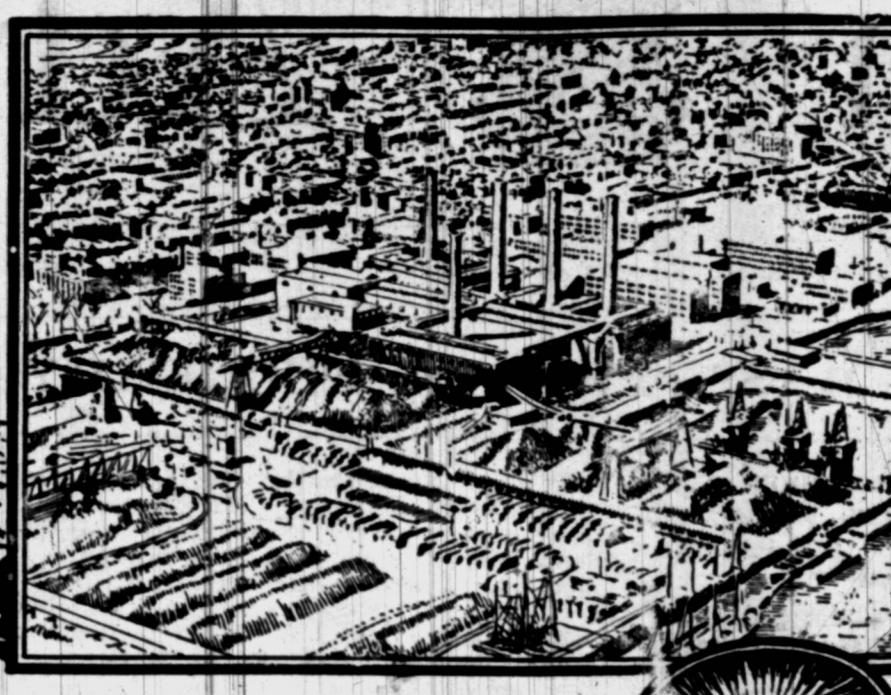

The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon, at 2.30, in the First Parish Unitarian Church, where Mr. Hodgdon had been its treasurer, for over twenty-five years, and where he and his family have been prominent. It was a simple service conducted by Rev. Frederic Gill, D. D., minister of the church, who announced that he would follow the service along the same lines as those which he conducted at the time of the passing of Dr. Hodgdon. This consisted of the reading of scripture and of a bit of poetry, especially appropriate. The prayer was an inspiring one for Dr. Gill spoke of the splendid life that had been lived among his townspeople, manly and stainless. That his ability has been manifested in a great work, well done in a quiet, modest manner, finding his satisfaction in work. His affection and loyalty in the home as an example of the best type of manhood, which he had left to his family, the town and the state, were feeling brought out in the prayer. Mr. Edward S. Fessenden played on the organ the hymns, "Abide with Me," and "Nearer My God To Thee." The casket was surrounded with beautiful flowers arranged about the pulpit platform and choir railing and over the casket. The bearers were Mr. Frederick W. Wales, clerk of State Water Board, who had been associated with Mr. Hodgdon for a long period of years; besides others of his associates, who were John N. Ferguson, Francis L. Sellew, Luther Bateman and Samuel Warren, the latter having also been with Mr. Hodgdon for many years on the Water Board.

The funeral was noticeable for the large number of men present, including town officials and also men who had been associated with Mr. Hodgdon in his broader work in the state, besides personal friends, the church being nearly filled. The honorary bearers above mentioned also acted as ushers.

Mr. Hodgdon was a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and the Technology Engineers, also of the latter's Alumni Council, of Technology Engineers.

The L Street Station of Boston Edison in South Boston, with a capacity of 260,000 horsepower. On Dec. 21, 1922, Boston Edison supplied enough electricity to light eighty million 25-candlepower lamps for an hour—enough lamps to circle the United States, if set only 9½ inches apart. Note the 75,000-ton coal reserve.

The Friendly Glow

On that day a great city leapt forward!

THERE are two million people in this Greater Boston of ours—a great forward-moving body, whose progress is as inevitable as the hands of a clock, and so gradual that the eye can't see it move.

But on December 21, in the twilight of the passing year, we saw this city move!

December 21, if you recall, was not an extraordinary day in weather—just a busy Thursday, with Christmas in the air. By a trick of fate, it was the anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims—the very day when modern civilization first touched the Massachusetts shores.

How did we see it?

Three hundred and two years later, to a day, a thrilling report came through to the officers of the Boston Edison.

"Every record we ever had is smashed," it ran. "Greater Boston used today more than 2,000,000 kilowatt hours of electricity. That's 24 per cent more than was ever used before in one day!" Do you wonder that we looked back across three centuries to a little boat, making shoreward through the ice? We saw by contrast the power of 179,000 horses, commanded by a lever here, a button there, to make Greater Boston—greater.

We saw a trainload of coal, 44 cars of 40 tons apiece, used that day to drive this city ahead.

And we saw Greater Boston even straining at its boundaries to reach a helping hand to neighbors outside, for that day we supplied 226,000 kilowatt hours of power to territory beyond Greater Boston.

That was your great day

Where were you on December 21? What inspiration made you play your part in the great advance against our common enemies—Darkness and Idleness?

Two million people can think of a lot of things to do with electricity. On that day they did them: more motors drove more machines in factories and shops; more cars carried more people on more missions; in our homes and hospitals and offices and theatres, a great community was getting more done in the business of living and growing.

Somewhere, you contributed to this progress. Just as surely as the progress was made, you will profit by it. You, and the rest of the two million, push a button, close a switch, or swing a lever. On an indicator of the Boston Edison Company a needle shows your command, a current flashes in response—and a city moves forward!

A TRIBUTE TO AN IMMORTAL ENGINEER

(Rights Reserved)
In honor we stand before his bier,
Bowed head, in reverence to our chief,
The one whose deeds will ever live,
O'er this great State in strong relief.

The sea, the shore, attest his work,
His ceaseless toil, his wondrous worth,
Our Engineer of Waterways
What'er the name in former days.

We see the wall,—protection given;
We know the channel to an haven;
The land we tread saved from the sea;
And structures massive for eternity.

Though great be these material things,
We know that greater than all these,
His worth to us, unmeasured, stands,
As one we call our greatest friend,
Yet one we know we have all,
As leader in these works of men.

The tapestry his life reveals
Is woven through with many strands;
They're woven in our lives as well,
As deeds and purpose immortal.

TRUSTEES OF ROBBINS LIBRARY ARE ARRANGING A FITTING PUBLIC RECOGNITION OF 50 YEARS OF SERVICE OF MISS ELIZABETH J. NEWTON AS LIBRARIAN.

NEWTON AS LIBRARIAN.

Some two months ago the trustees of Robbins Memorial Library began to formulate plans for the proper observance and recognition of the fifty years of continuous service of Miss Elizabeth J. Newton, as Librarian, of Arlington's Public Library. The date when Miss Newton assumed charge of the library is not definitely known, although it occurred some time the latter part of January, in fact it is thought the last week in the month.

At the meeting above referred to, a committee was appointed by the chairman of the board, William A. Müller. Besides Mr. Müller there were two others, Mr. Arthur J. Wellington, the secretary of the Board and Miss M. Helen Teele. Owing to the weather it was thought best not to arrange for any public recognition of Miss Newton's long and honorable service until later, which will probably be some time in March, when a public meeting will be held in the Robbins Memorial Town Hall.

Rev. S. C. Bushnell, now of New Haven, Connecticut, but for many years a valued member of the board of Trustees of the library, serving as its chairman, is interested in the coming event and he will be here to assist in making the anniversary an important occasion and a fitting tribute to Miss Newton's long service.

It is difficult to realize that Miss Newton has served the town for half a century in her public position, because of the graceful way in which she carries her years. It is not an easy task to maintain the dignity of her position and still keep the friendship and admiration of the thousands of readers of the library, but this Miss Newton has done by her courteous and fair minded treatment of all who come to the library.

No doubt when the time comes, the observance of this anniversary will be a notable occasion in which all the town will join in making it an event that will be worthy of the town and the splendid woman they will honor.

CYRUS E. DALLIN TALKS ON "MY FRIENDS THE INDIANS"

The Park Avenue Congregational Church was well filled last Sunday evening to listen to the talk by our honored and noted townsman and sculptor, Cyrus E. Dallin, on the subject nearest his heart and which has found expression in his wonderfully realistic statues of the Indian. The subject was "My Indian Friends," and he made the talk not only informing but intensely interesting. The musical part of the program was under the direction of Miss Edith Byram and at this time the Intermediate choir sang the processional hymn, "Ancient of Days," and an anthem, "Snow at Sunset." Mr. Peter Paffen, baritone of Dorchester, rendered "Our King," in a remarkably fine manner. Mr. Dallin was pleasantly introduced by Rev. H. L. Stratton, minister of the church.

Mr. Dallin's manner and vocabulary when telling the story of his friends, was so simple and direct that the attention of everyone was held through the talk. He told, how, as a little boy, he lived in the west near Indian camps surrounding the little English settlement. How he learned to study the Indians, as they really are and had come to admire them. Mr. Dallin feels that the outrages committed by the savages as history gives them, they are not responsible for.

The pages of history to Mr. Dallin, as to many of us, symbolizes truth, but Mr. Dallin said to his amazement at one of the French academies where he was obliged to take a test in French history, he learned that during the battle of the Cloth and Gold, through English history, that the thirty English Knights vanquished the thirty French knights, while the French history told that the French knights left nothing of their English foes, so, he said that many of the attacks and breaches of treaties and other outrages written on the pages of white man's history, would be an entirely different story on the red man's book.

If the Indians were hostile to the white men why did Massasoit, when the Pilgrims landed, immediately go to Governor Carter and offer land on which to plant and hunt, and also seek peace terms. For fifty-three years the Plymouth Bay colony flourished, and this was only with the help of the Indians, who showed how to plant the land and cultivate it and also to trap the wild animals. The only trouble with Indians came in the dispute over land. They loaned the land to the whites who immediately put up fences and stakes and said, "You keep off, this is our land." King Phillip's war was in the interest of the Indians, who were gradually being driven back towards the west.

The scalping process of the savage can not be recorded back of the time of the landing of the Pilgrims. The white men placed a bounty on the Indian scalps and the red men began to cultivate their scalp locks and during the war flaunted it in the face of their enemy.

Mr. Dallin explained with the use of slides, his four well known statues, "Welcome," which is at Plymouth, Mass.; "Warning," at Chicago, Ill.; the "Protest," which he made for the St. Louis Exposition, and the "Appeal," which stands outside the Museum of Fine Arts, in Boston. Other studies of the Indian were also shown including, "The Scout" and "On the Warpath."

The whole story of the red man may never be told only in the four statues that Mr. Dallin has created who calls himself the friend of the Indian, and who by his life work has established that fact.

A. H. S. GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM DEFEATS WINCHESTER
TER IN A SCORE,
19 TO 17

The girls of the High school basketball team played a wonderful game in the gymnasium of the school on Thursday afternoon of last week, defeating the Winchester team, by a score of 19 to 17, in one of the fastest and best played games here in some time. It was quite a victory for the Arlington girls, as the Winchester team is considered one of the best in the league. The game was hard fought all the way through.

The first half of the game ended with Arlington two points in the lead, but Winchester broke this lead and got ahead soon after the second half started. The clever blocking of Miss Rogers of the Winchester team kept the Arlington score down considerably, for the throws of Miss Mahoney of the Arlington team were cleverly blocked almost every time by Miss Rogers. The burden of making the baskets fell to Miss Braithwaite and she made good.

The game was witnessed by a large number of students from each school, both of which had its crowd of royal rooters, who were kept on edge throughout the game by the closeness of the score and the fast playing of both teams. The summary of the game is as follows:

MISS JOSEPHINE LANE
DECEASED

Miss Josephine Lane, daughter of Mrs. Mary and the late Michael Lane, died Thursday evening, January 25th, following a short illness, and the death of this well known resident of the town, came as a great shock to her wide circle of friends.

The Lane family made their home at 67 North Union street, Arlington, and throughout that entire section, Miss Lane was a friend to all. For a number of years she conducted a store at 67 North Union street and by her honesty and square dealing she made many friends. With the children she was especially popular, for never one of her young patrons came into the store without going away with a goodie of some sort.

In the work of St. Agnes' Church, Miss Lane took a keen interest and was one of the prominent workers in all its social activities. She was a member of the Ladies' Sodality of the church, a member of St. Agnes' Court, Catholic Daughters of America, and St. Matachi Court, M. C. O. F.

Miss Lane was a lifelong resident of this town, having been born and brought up here, and attended the local schools. She was the devoted companion of her mother, especially since the death of her father.

Besides the mother, Miss Lane is survived by three brothers, John J., Michael J., and Harry Lane of this town; and four sisters, Mrs. Nora Jaynes, Mrs. Margaret Ahern, Mrs. Nellie O'Brien and Mrs. Mary Bickford.

The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon from her late residence, on North Union street. Services were held in St. Agnes' Church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Mathew J. Flaherty. The church was almost filled to its capacity with relatives and friends of the young woman, and their sympathy was expressed in many floral tributes. The bearers were nephews, Messrs. John Lane, Edward Lane, Robert Ahern, John O'Brien, Charles Jaynes and Edward O'Brien. Burial was in St. Paul Cemetery.

Monday morning, in St. Agnes' Church, a high mass of requiem was celebrated for Miss Lane, by the pastor. Music was by members of the church choir. The mass was attended by many and the two organizations of which Miss Lane was a member, were represented by delegations.

LONGFELLOW CHAPTER, NO. 117,
O. E. S., GIVE A SUCCESSFUL
DANCING PARTY

Longfellow Chapter, No. 117, Order Eastern Star, with their friends, made up a company of two hundred who assembled in Robbins Memorial Town Hall, on Friday evening, January 26th, for a social dancing party. The party was managed by Mrs. Harrile Whitney, whose ability in making affairs of this kind a success for the lodge of which she is a popular member, is well known. This was the fifth dancing party that Mrs. Whitney has managed for the lodge and as has been the case of the previous ones, this was a great success. There were not only a large number of the lodge members present with members of their families, but quite a company of the Appalachian Club, of which Mr. Whitney is a prominent member.

Linton's orchestra played for the dancing and gave great satisfaction. There was one Paul Jones fox trot introduced, and created a good deal of merriment, because of the droll sayings of the leader, who kept the dancers guessing as to his next announcement as to the manner in which they should choose their partner. Another feature was what was called an automobile dance. This was introduced instead of the elimination dance. A part of an automobile was given to each dancer. If their part remained intact they could continue to dance, but if the leader announced that its special part had broken down, they were obliged to take their seats. The parts that stood the test of the strenuous dance the longest, were given a prize. The couple who represented these were given each a flash light.

The Worthy Matron of the Lodge, Mrs. Katherine Ryder, was present, also the Worthy Patron, Mr. George H. Higgins and his wife, who is the associate Patron, besides many past and present officers of the lodge. It was an extremely pretty party in point of dressing. Mrs. Whitney was in white silk with silver trimming and maline. Other members of her committee were Mrs. Albin Cameron, who was in black jet toilette; Mrs. George Higgins, who was in black lace and Mrs. Ralph Hunt. Mrs. Hunt was unable to be present on account of the illness of her husband.

An out of town caterer served refreshments during intermission.

ARLINGTON WOMAN'S CLUB
NOTES

The Current Events class of the Arlington Woman's Club has a membership of some one hundred. The class has enjoyed the two talks that already have been given by Mrs. Grace Pool, who is president of the State Federation. The meetings have been held in the Junior High school and have been open to the teachers of the town. The next meeting will be February 7th. The remaining lessons in the course will occur, March 7th, and Feb. 21st. Miss Ethel Wellington is the chairman, the course being given under the direction of the Education Committee of the club.

The next Musical under the direction of the Music committee of the club, will be held February 8th, at the home of Mrs. James A. Bailey, of Wellington street. At that time "The Gainsborough Ensemble," will be the talent. This is a high class group of artists consisting of Jessie Hatch Symonds, violinist; Mrs. Hatch, soprano soloist and Mr. William Ellis Weston, pianist. The trio appear in the costume of the Gainsborough period. Single tickets for the remainder of the musicals, which will be given, one in February, another in March, and the third in April, will be 75 cents each. Tickets for all three afternoons will be $1.50. These tickets may be obtained of Mrs. Llewellyn Evans or any member of the music committee. There is still an opportunity to attend these choice programs. Last year the music department was able at the close of the course, to turn over to Miss Grace Pierce, the instructor of music in our public schools, a goodly sum to be used by her in the promotion of music appreciation in the schools. It is hoped that this will be so at the close of this season. Owing to the high class programs being put on by the committee, the expenses are very heavy, but this policy has seemed to be the better plan than to arrange programs that would be of a mediocre character. Those who are not attending the afternoons, are missing a musical treat.

BAY STATE ARLINGTON COUNTRY CLUB CARNIVAL

It was a merry party of snowshoers, skiers and tobogganists, not to mention coasters, that gathered at the links of the Arlmont Golf Club, on Saturday afternoon, January 27, to take part in the carnival, held for members and their families. A perfect day made it a gala event in every way, the program running well into the evening.

The club house and grounds were alive with humanity, enjoying themselves in one way or another, both out of doors and in. A long toboggan chute was erected and this was enjoyed by a great many. The youngsters, as well as many of the elders, came with sleds and the hills about the club house provided coasting. Skis were also much in evidence. The committee had arranged a long ski run with the proper hazards and the like, to make the sport more interesting, and this it proved to be.

As evening came on the huge fire was started and a "weenie roast" was enjoyed. Chef F. C. Monroe, who incidentally had the greater part of the program in hand, found himself a busy man, handing out the "hot dogs" to the hungry crowd. Inside the club house there was merriment, music being provided all the afternoon and evening, when dancing was enjoyed by those so inclined.

The committee in charge had arranged a long program of events for the members and their families, but the company was so engaged in the toboggan chute and at coasting, and skiing, that only a few of the events were run off. These consisted of an obstacle race on skis for boys, the events being won by Arthur M. Murphy; an obstacle ski race for girls, won by Grace Clifford; running race for girls, won by Alice Marsh and a running race for boys, won by Kenneth Harvey. Mrs. Charles Beldix and George H. Haskell were the winners for the lady and gentleman, having the best sporting costumes.

Ralph Sperry was chairman of the general committee and F. C. Monroe, handled the sports and roast.

In the evening the exterior of the club house was illuminated with many electric lights and all along the slides and shutters there were torches gleaming, while the huge bonfire lighted up a great area. It was late in the evening when the party wended its way home, after having spent an afternoon and evening, which had afforded pleasure to many club members and their friends, thanks to the committee and cooperation of the weather.

It was a red letter day in the history of this hustling club and another such event will probably be provided before the snow goes.

Because of limitations imposed upon members of the regular army in the wearing of medals and decorations with civilian clothes, there has been considerable misunderstanding concerning the rights of ex-service men in this regard. To clear up this misunderstanding, the Secretary of War has issued a statement to the effect that it does not, and never has claimed, any jurisdiction over ex-service men in this matter.
Furthermore, the Secretary of War expresses it as his opinion to be very desirable that ex-service men wear authorized medals and decorations upon all appropriate occasions with any kind of civilian clothes.

The treasury department at Washington has issued the statement that less than one-third of the war savings certificates have been presented for redemption or exchange. In making the statement, Secretary Mellon remarks that "it would be little short of a national calamity if the lessons of thrift and sound investment, learned during the war, should be lost in these days of reconstruction when the need of avoiding waste and extravagance is as great as ever. Treasury savings certificates will help the government to finance the debt left by the war."

Reports from Washington are to the effect that a concerted movement is on foot to secure a change in the law regulating immigration to the United States, that will admit a largely increased number annually. This measure should be defeated. Twenty-five years ago, 85 per cent of the European immigration was from the northerly section, these being of a highly desirable class. During the recent years this has been entirely reversed, people of the southern portion sending a tremendous proportion. It was to check this inflow of so much that is in every way undesirable, that the present restrictive legislation was enacted. The assimilating those already here is a gigantic task, made more difficult by the clanish attitude of these people. At no time since the law went into effect has the quota of the western and northwestern countries of Europe been exhausted. In fact, the immigrants from Germany, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Holland and the United Kingdom since the law became operative have been only about one-half of the number admissible under the new law.

Mr. Charles F. Coolidge of Arlington, who has been with the River-

ADVOCATE extends congratulations to Mr. Coolidge on his long and honorable service. Mr. Coolidge has

HAPPENINGS ON HOSPITAL HILL
Three years and a half ago the training school for nurses was opened at the Symmes Arlington Hospital.
So successful has been the hospital and so efficient the nurses sent out as graduates, that the school has now been accepted by the Mass State Nurses' Association and the school is now recognized as on par with the best in the state. An accredited school in three and a half years, is a record surely to be proud of in every way.

So rapidly has the Symmes Arlington Hospital grown that there have been many new additions made to its equipment and now an X-ray machine has been added. The machine is the property of Dr. Whitney King Coffin of Medford, who had the same properly installed at the hospital. The growing work at the hospital has made such machine a necessity and already it has been put to use. The hospital is very busy at present and is doing a splendid work in the community.

Dr. Charles J. Walsh of East Arlington, has been added to the staff of the hospital and Dr. Crosby of Cambridge has been retained as a consulting physician.

Wednesday afternoon, at the Nurses' Home of the Symmes Arlington Hospital, the alumni of the Training school held a very interesting meeting. It was the first meeting of the Alumni and a sort of reunion. The graduates were addressed by Mrs. Griggs and Mrs.
Ross, both of Boston, on subjects pertaining to the profession. During the social hour which followed, Miss Brown, superintendent of the hospital was the hostess and served tea.

COMRADE A. H. KNOWLES WAS EIGHTY-ONE ON SUNDAY.

JANUARY 28TH

Comrade Alfred H. Knowles was eighty-one years old on Sunday. More properly speaking we should have said, that Comrade Knowles was eighty-one years young, for there is not a man his age anywhere about these parts at least that can hold a candle to him in his well preserved appearance and his bright cheery temperament. These qualities naturally make him a welcome visitor in any circle and especially so with the American Legion, Post 39, and in all Grand Army Circles.

He is in constant demand as an installing officer, in the G. A. R., for he is known all over the state, having been past Department Commander, as well as Past Commander of Post 36, G. A. R. of Arlington.

Comrade Knowles, was born in Orleans on the Cape, January 28th, 1842, the only child of Joseph Mayo Knowles and Adelaine Wright. His father was a sea faring man and so naturally the child was so inclined. Fifteen years of his young manhood was passed in the navy going as a machinist for three years on the boat "Enterprise" and the remainder of the time on a Revenue Cutter.

He served during the Civil War enlisting at Boston in Company F, 24th M. V. I., September 7, 1861, for three years. Promoted to lieutenant, 54th M. V. I., December 7, 1863, and was discharged February 22, 1865, on account of wounds. He was promoted to captain, March 20, 1865, and assigned to 9th Corps
Staff and transferred to 6th Corps
Staff and finally discharged June 4, 1865.

If you want to grow old gracefully, ask Comrade Knowles for his recipe.

—A group of women, interested in the forming of an Arlington chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, met Thursday of last week at the home of Mrs. Charles Morton, of 123 Claremont avenue, who has been the prime mover in the effort to organize an Arlington chapter. Already quite a number have expressed their desire to form such a chapter and Mrs. Morton has been especially busy in making out papers for their enrollment. The chapter is for women from all sections of Arlington and as the history of the town is chiefly in the center, it is hoped that many from that section will join, for it is the intention of the chapter to study the history of Arlington. At present the ladies are interested in reading "Arlington Past and Present," written by Mr. Charles S. Parker, editor of the ADVOCATE. The next meeting will be February 17th, with Mrs. Morton, who expects at that time to form the chapter. Those coming into the chapter now will be its charter members. Any lady in the town interested to join, may communicate with Mrs. Morton. Arlington 1674-J.

—Richard S. Hall who passed away suddenly, January 23rd, at his late home, 82 Florence avenue, will be greatly missed in this community. He was the highest type of manhood and between husband and wife there was that bond of companionship and love that spoke of a perfect union. With each other they found their greatest pleasure and their devotion was apparent to all who knew, Mr. and Mrs. Hall. He was born in Boston, the son of Huram K. and Louise Whitman Hall, and was graduated from the English High school. He was in the photography supply business before entering the banking business, which was fifteen years ago. At the time of his death he was paying teller at the East Cambridge Savings Bank. The family has lived sixteen years in Arlington, where they have made host of friends. Many will remember Mr. Hall's especially fine dramatic work in the play, given two years ago, and written by Mrs. Powell. Mrs. Hall who was born Susan A. Norton, of West Medford, has been active in the club life of the Heights, having served with efficiency as president of the Study Club, and her many friends sympathize with her in this great loss. The funeral was held last Friday, January 26th. The devotional services were conducted by Rev. Frederic Gill, D. D., minister of the First Parish (Unitarian) Church, at Arlington Centre, where the family attended. Musical selections were sung by Mrs. Herbert W. Reed. There was a wealth of beautiful flowers. Besides the wife, Mr. Hall is survived by one son, Whitman Norton Hall, who is a student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

—The adjourned meeting of the Park Avenue Congregational Church was held Thursday evening, of last week, in the church. Previous to the business there was a Dutch supper, served in the supper room.

—Mrs. Edmund Byram, who was assisted by Mrs. George Clark, who had chairmaned the regular church supper; Mrs. George Higgins and Mrs. Edith Holmes. One of the principal items to be disposed of at this meeting was that regarding the engaging of a religious education director. The matter of raising funds to carry on the work was left to the religious education committee, which is Mr. Herbert A. Snow, chairman; Mr. T. C. Wallace, superintendent of the Sunday school; Mrs. J. Howard Hayes, Miss Margaret Elder and Miss Helen Warren. The committee on the revision of the By-laws reported. This committee is composed of the minister, Rev. H. L. Stratton, Mrs. Bert S. Currier, Mr. George A. G. Woods and Mr. Ernest A. Snow. The budget for the year was made up at this time.

RESPECTFULLY represents Mary L. Mead of Boston, Suffolk County, that she is administratrix de bonis non, with will annexed, of the Estate of Patrick Mead, late of Arlington, in said County, as appears in Case No. 9 of the Probate Court, dated the nineteenth day of March, A. D. 1920. M. Francis Mead of Arlington, in said County of Middlesex, was appointed administrator de bonis non of the Estate of Nellie Mead, and letters of administration were issued to him. That said M. Francis Mead, in his capacity as said administrator d. b. n. of the Estate of Nellie Mead, has brought action in this Court against your petitioner, alleging that a certain legacy to said Nellie Mead in the will of said Patrick Mead, has not been paid: and further

That said M. Francis Mead, in his said capacity, has brought or caused to be brought, proceeding in this Court to re-open the final account of Sylvester Mead, deceased, as said Sylvester was administrator of the Estate of said Nellie Mead, which final account had been duly allowed and approved by said Court.

That said M. Francis Mead, shortly after his appointment as said administrator d. b. n. wickedly and corruptly induced, persuaded and influenced his mother, Ellen Mead, to bring proceedings in the Superior Court in Equity for the County of Middlesex, against your petitioner herein, setting up a claim that said Sylvester Mead and James M. Mead, brothers of said M. Francis, had perpetrated a fraud upon their mother, the said Ellen Mead, by which she had been deprived of her possession of a building, which said Ellen Mead was induced by said M. Francis, to allege falsely, that she held title in fee. Said action is numbered 3834 in the records of said Superior Court; and your petitioner in due time will introduce said record in support of pertinent allegations herein contained.

That said M. Francis Mead, wickedly and corruptly induced, persuaded and influenced his mother, Ellen Mead, to bring another action in the Superior Court in Equity for the County of Middlesex, against your petitioner herein, setting up a claim that said Sylvester Mead, son of said Ellen, had perpetrated a fraud upon his mother, by which it was made to appear in the records of the Registry of Deeds of said County of Middlesex that said Ellen had executed a mortgage of said land in said Arlington belonging to said Ellen, to said Sylvester, and further, that said Ellen had never signed said mortgage, nor had ever been requested so to do, and that she was unable to read and write, and that said Sylvester, either had forged or procured to be forged, the name of said Ellen upon said mortgage deed, and upon the note which said mortgage was given to secure; that said action is numbered 3947 in the records of said Superior Court, and your petitioner in due time will introduce said record in support of pertinent allegations herein contained.

The both said actions in the Superior Court are on to be heard and were duly referred to Gilbert A. A. Pevey, Esq., of said County, as master, under a rule to him issued to find the material facts. Both said cases having been duly heard together by said master, were dismissed by decree of the court upon findings of fact made by said master and duly reported, as follows, insofar as the same are deemed directly pertinent to this petition:

"Upon the evidence it appears that Frank (M. Francis Mead) was the person who instigated the suits in this case, saw the attorneys who appeared for the Plaintiff (Ellen Mead) and has been the active factor in all these proceedings. At the time when the plaintiff was presenting her testimony, Frank was present at her side and in her presence. Her testimony was apparently given under his influence. The plaintiff has offered no testimony whatever in support of her allegation upon either complaint. Both the record evidence produced, as well as oral testimony of many witnesses (some of whom have been mentioned by name) all concur in this Plaintiff."

"I do not find that the Plaintiff has deliberately falsified but I find the evidence incontrovertibly shows that she is and has been under the controlling influence of her son Frank which has led her to insinuate or intimate without any foundation therefor, that these two sons, Sylvester and James M. whom she so much loved—it is hard to see which one the more—that committed some wrong upon her and had taken some steps to cover it up. To the contrary, it appears in evidence that these sons have acted as true sons to their mother they dearly loved, and have even sacrificed their own time and means to make her last days happy. Not one of her sons, not even your petitioner, is in debt to her. The evidence by an almost overwhelming preponderance of the testimony fails to support the claim of the plaintiff, that this mortgage was prepared by Sylvester without her knowledge or consent, but on the other hand establishes the fact that this mortgage deed was prepared under the advice given to her by her son James M., who fully informed her of its meaning and signified that it was again fully informed of its significance and meaning by Arthur K. Wellington, Esquire whose testimony was not impeached in any way—that she was fully aware of the expense and cash outlays made by her son Sylvester in her behalf in the years before and never questioned his honesty, love and regard for her—that these outlays as submitted incurred by Sylvester in his behalf have never been repaid and as above found, were more than the amount of this mortgage."

And your petitioner further represents that said M. Francis Mead, by his conduct in the foregoing matters, as found and adjudicated by the Court, has wantonly subjected the Estate of said Patrick Mead, to the Estate of James M. Mead, and likewise your petitioner, as the residuary legatee of the Estate of James M. Mead, and as the executrix of said estate, to great expense, vexation, annoyance, delay and unjust attack and has by his said wanton misconduct hindered and delayed his own kindred in collecting legacies due them under the will of said Patrick Mead.

On the foregoing petition, the petitioner is ordered to notify said M. Francis Mead and all other persons interested, to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the nineteenth day of February A. D. 1923, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, in the cause, if any he has, with the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted, by serving said M. Francis Mead with a copy of said petition, at least fourteen days before said Court—and by delivering a copy thereof to all other persons interested seven days at least before said Court, or by publishing a copy thereof once in each week for three successive weeks in the Arlington Advocate, the last publication to be on one day at least before said Court, and by mailing postage paid a copy thereof to all other persons interested, seven days at least, before said Court.

ARLINGTON BOY SCOUT NOTES

At the first meeting of the new Court of Honor, four Scouts, all from Troop 8 were officially made Second Class Scouts. They are Scouts Malcolm B. Davis, Jr., John Marsh, Lyman Moore and John C. Rugg. Francis B. Hodgdon, Assistant Scoutmaster of Troop 3 was awarded these merit badges; Handicraft, Civics, Cooking, Safety First, First Aid, First Aid to Animals and Public Health.

Scout Newell Blackburn, Troop 3, was awarded merit badges for Pioneering, Swimming, Camping, Life Saving, Electricity, Personal Health and Public Health. Walter A. Nicholl of Troop 5, for Life Saving; Charles T. Atwood of Troop 5, Life Saving and Eagle Scout Charles LeCasse, Marksmanship.

The Patrol Leaders' school met on Tuesday in the Old Town Hall, with 27 present and Vice-President Nicholl of Troop 5, in the chair. A lot of interesting work was accomplished.

The Scout orchestra which is to play at the celebration, February 8, is practicing regularly and coming along fine.

Many Scouts did good turns last week hauling 100-pound bags of coal on sleds and delivering them to people. This was work that was greatly appreciated by the public.

Charles Allen, an old Arlington boy, now at M. I. T., who was a Scout, while living in Acton, has been appointed Assistant Scoutmaster of Troop 6.

Scoutmaster Phillip W. Alsen and Assistant Scoutmaster Washburn of Troop 3, were last week presented with Veteran Scout badges in an impressive ceremony. Three Tenderfoot badges were also presented to Temple Pierce, William Howatt and Walter F. Angus, all of Troop 3.

Tenderfoot badges and certificates were also presented to Scouts William P. Elwell, and G. M. Tarleton, of Troop 8, and William Mower of Troop 5.

Scout Newell B'ackburn has transferred from Troop 3 to Troop 6, and Scout Jack Berry of Troop 4 to Troop 3.

Many of the Scouts have been feeding the birds during the past week with grain from the American Protective Game Association. If anyone knowing of starving or hungry birds will call up Scout Headquarters, Arlington 520, and notify Executive Harvey H. Bacon, he will give them grain to feed the birds or send Scouts to do it.

Troop 8 held its regular meeting Wednesday, Jan. 24, in the vestry of Pleasant Street Congregational Church, and in spite of the mean weather, nearly every member was present. After the usual business had been disposed of, the stunt that the troop will put on Anniversary Night was discussed and practiced. A patrol contest was held in knotting and signalling, both of which events were won by Wolf Patrol. A handkerchief game was then played and was won by the Beaver Patrol. Many candidates are appearing and there is little doubt that the troop will fill its quota before February 8th.

When one seeks solitude in preference to community life we call him abnormal. Yet there are some who find "pleasure in the pathless woods," and "rapture on the lonely shore," and "society by the deep sea, and music in its roar." Byron was surfeited with social attention when he longed for the pathless woods, and the lonely shore, and the deep sea and the music in its roar. There are moments when solitude, even though one may almost feel it, is useful to save one's soul. Yet too much solitude may be worse than too little. Very few people enjoy loneliness. I met a man in the New Hampshire woods, who spent six months of the year gathering spruce gum, and he insisted that they were the happiest of his life.

Daniel Boone, it is said, was supremely contented when roaming alone, day after day, through the forest, with his trusty rifle on his shoulder. This love of solitude is quite characteristic of the pioneer, the man who scouts for the coming settler. But most people prefer their solitude in small doses, and not too frequent. The vast majority are too fond of society, never satisfied except in the whirl of the dance, or the anticipated soiree. The still hour is dreaded, and the call to meditation is avoided. The din of street cars, and automobiles, and the sound of tramping feet, and the babel of human voices are more welcome to the multitude than the loneliness which turns the soul in upon itself. Often the first step toward a new life is sitting down with the old life, without any one looking on. Yet the isolated life is unnatural. Man is unquestionably a social being. Association is more to him than riches, or a beautiful castle in the depths of the woods, or on the mountain's crag. The tongue is intended for use, and ideas for exchange. One may abuse the one, and be fearfully lacking in the other. Yet the normal life will not lack either.

Some things, however, work against the normal life. Such, for instance, as old age. A man belongs to his generation, and when they pass off the scene, he performs left alone. In part the family life may protect him against this loneliness, children, and grandchildren, and even great grandchildren, may save him from this fate to some extent, but his generation passes on all the same. In spite of the beautiful considerateness of the new generation he remains a member of a former generation. And when he lingers alone, with none to molest or make him afraid, it sometimes becomes pathetic.

I was acquainted with a man years ago, who withdrew to a room in Boston, after a busy life in public, and there with seldom a caller slowly faded out and vanished behind the clouds. Not that he would not gladly have held sweet converse; but there were none who cared enough for him to climb the stairs to his dingy room. Not a few such might be found any day. The multitude sing their songs, and rush by in their eager quest, unaware that the old man above awaits in solitude the last call. In part it may be his fault, and in part it may be the fault of a thoughtless, if not a selfish age.

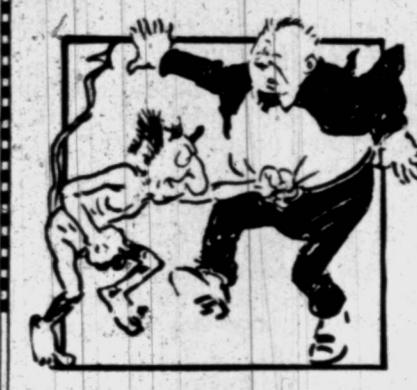

Sometimes one ignores the new world always coming on, taking no interest in young people, or their interests or ambitions, and by and by he finds himself among the very few. The world has moved by while he has been attending to himself. Had he jumped on to the young people's chariot, even for a short ride, had he been something of a sport, had he tried to cut the figure eight on the ice, at the risk of breaking his leg, had he put on a pair of snow shoes though he tumbled head foremost into the snowbank, he might have kept in the world awhile longer. A man who reaches seventy without friends among the young people, will be left to his loneliness. It is an old saying, that if you do not care for your town, your town will not care for you; and if one doesn't care for the new generation, the new generation will not care for him. There are, unfortunately, some people, who live only in their own generation, very much provoked at the generation which preceded them, and the generation following them; and in a few years they are left to suck their thumb in solitude. Why they are not given the front seats any more is not understood by them. They are dead but they do not know it.

Others lashed themselves to a scheme, or system of ideas, or a method of doing business, and they would not change. I knew a lawyer who insisted on writing his pleadings by hand instead of dictating to a stenographer, to be copied on a typewriter. Of course he soon fell behind, and became a back number. Men who do not change, perhaps I should say, grow, even down to old age, are sure to be forsaken. The world will not hold up on their account. When I was a boy, a steam train speeding at twenty-five miles an hour was flying on the wings of the wind, while now forty and even sixty miles an hour is not overspeeding. And one must speed up with the rest or be left behind in the solitude of a past generation.

Yet there are people who still believe that democracy is a blunder, that the rise of the laboring people is a misfortune, that the despoiling of the lauded class is robbery, that the separation of church and state is an offense against the stars and that to forsake the beliefs of the fathers is an unpardonable sin.

Such people will be left on their man's land to spend their dry old age in grumbling seclusion. The world of thought no less than the world of invention moves on. The only way to escape solitude, unwelcome and dry as dust, is to keep in close touch with the next generation at least, and be alive to a changing world, though your hair grows grey, and your form bent.

HISTORY OF ARLINGTON POST OFFICE GIVEN BY JAMES G. KEENAN, BEFORE THE HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The regular meeting of the Arlington Historical Society was held Monday evening, in the parlor of the First Parish Unitarian Church, with a large attendance.

President James P. Parmenter presided and after the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, by the secretary, Charles A. Hardy, Mr. Parmenter spoke of the great loss the Society had sustained in the death of Frank W. Hodgdon, who was one of its charter members and also one of its vice-presidents. He spoke of Mr. Hodgdon's great interest in the town, both in its past and present, and of his having been a loyal worker, not only in the town, but in the society, where in the latter he would be greatly missed both for his wise council and advice as well as his pleasing personality. The president read a letter from Scout Commissioner Harold L. Frost, urging all the members of the society to attend the Boy Scout celebration to be held in Town Hall, on Thursday evening, of next week. A report was also given of the finding of Mr. Appleton as to the advisability of the society endeavoring to save the two Whittemore houses on land recently taken by the town in the triangle lot adjoining that of the Soldier's monument. It was thought by the society that it would not be practicable to spend the money necessary to restore the two houses, much as it was regretted and the committee appointed to have the matter in charge, reported in its opinion nothing should be done about the matter.

Mrs. H. H. Homer reported progress on the play that will soon be presented by members of the society in the Robbins Memorial Town Hall, in which some of the members will take part. There were a number of gifts, some of which were on exhibition.

The speaker of the evening, was Mr. James G. Keenan, who for nearly twenty-five years has been coming to the homes in Arlington, in the employ of Uncle Sam's post office department, and his genial manner has won for him a host of friends, who have recognized in Mr. Keenan a man of more than ordinary mentality, an idealist quite remote from the prosaic occupation by which he earns his daily bread.

His verses have often found their way into the columns of the ADVOCATE and have been a help and inspiration to those who have read them for Mr. Keenan always has a message worth while in his poems. At this time Mr. Keenan devoted himself to the telling of the history of Arlington post office, and it was admirably done. Mr. Keenan assembled his facts into a paper which was interestingly compiled and admirably given, the bits of humor introduced by him adding a good deal to the interest of his recital. Mr. Keenan went to the bed rock of the postal system in this country, and from that wove his story up to the time when Arlington, then West Cambridge, had a post office. Much of the first part of the facts given will be found in Mr. C. S. Parker's book "Past and Present," written at the time the town of Arlington celebrated its 100th anniversary. Mr. Keenan elaborated upon this, bringing in more interesting facts as to the early history of the post office, and then traced its steady growth from the time it occupied a place in both the Whittemore houses, now standing on the triangle lot next to the Soldier's monument. It was Henry Whittemore who had the post office up to 1831, when he was succeeded by Isaac Shattuck, the father of Mrs. L. M. Stanton, who now resides in New York City, and from whom the society at this time received some valuable papers in her possession, of pertaining to the post office during the years of her father's administration.

Mr. Keenan continued his story telling of the other buildings, which have housed the office, which were John Fowle's house, at the corner of Broadway and Mass. avenue, now occupied by the Soldier's monument; then to the Old Town Hall, first in the side now occupied by the police station, then on the opposite side, both of which were approached by a flight of steps; then to its home in the Sherburne block, and finally to its present quarters.

Mr. Keenan followed the growth of the office, especially after the late Alfred D. Holt was appointed postmaster in 1895, telling of his obtaining for Arlington a free delivery service as a station of the Boston post office, which meant a sacrifice of salary to him. Benjamin Cleary, Charles Stevens, Mr. Keenan were the three carriers at that time and the assistant to Mr. Holt was the late Frank S. Breen. Mr. Stevens was later transferred to another office, and Mr. Michael Nevill became a carrier. Messrs. Cleary, Keenan and Nevill will have completed twenty-five years of service in October. Daniel W. Haley, who is now in the post office, has also been a clerk for nearly twenty-five years. John Murray and William McNeil, the latter the superintendent at Arlington Heights and Mr. Murray have each given long and faithful service and were especially mentioned in the paper. In fact Mr. Keenan devoted a part of his paper in telling of the history of the Heights post office, naming the postmasters as he also did for the center office. He paid a beautiful tribute to the late Frank Breen which was touchingly expressed.

One of the interesting things of the paper was Mr. Keenan's comparison of the post office in its early days with that of the present. The noting that not so very many years ago six sacks received a day was considered a large number and that during the Christmas rush often 300 sacks a day were received.

It would be impossible to give a comprehensive idea of the paper, for it occupied fully an hour in the reading of it, but it will be preserved by the society and will be a valuable contribution to its already important documents. Mr. Keenan was given a hearty vote of thanks at the conclusion of his paper.

PUBLIC OPINION AGAINST INCREASED IMMIGRATION

The movement to lift the draw-gates and admit a new flood of immigration to America is not in accord with public opinion. The nation as a whole is pretty well satisfied with present restrictions. These provide that "the number of aliens who may be admitted under the immigration laws of the United States in any fiscal year be limited to 8 per centum of the number of foreign born persons of such nationality resident in the United States, as determined by the United States census of 1910."

This law expires June 30th, of this year, and there is beginning a determined drive to have its provisions modified. Such complaint as exists arises from the fact that great numbers of foreigners from the south and east of Europe are kept from entry by the quota set for their country. The races of the north of Europe, which formerly constituted the backbone of new Americans, have not filed up their quota. Under the present law many more of these could find admission.

Shortage of labor in some industries is alleged by those who seek to bring in aliens by the million under new legislation. Some of these interests would even have the literacy test eliminated and let in anyone with a strong back.

The problem of Americanization would be intensified many fold by such a policy. The organizations seeking a new supply of cheap labor fail to realize the seriousness of this. Lowered cost of production is indeed a desirable thing, but not at the price of American standards. To pass a tariff to protect American workingmen against cheap foreign labor and then to admit that labor to compete on our own soil is not statesmanship. President Harding rightly withstood the pressure to urge easier immigration laws.

Involved in this question is the maintenance of the American standard of living. These races from abroad have simpler wants and can work for lower wages without any sense of sacrifice than can native Americans. It is well to consider the full implication of this. A lowered standard of living means less buying and selling. The market for meat, for clothing and all sorts of commodities would slacken under this influence. What would be saved in wages would be lost in the decrease of sales.

It has not been proved that there is any shortage of labor in America when wages sufficient to maintain a decent standard of living are offered. A year ago there was no employment at any wage for millions of men and business suffered for lack of popular purchasing power. Conditions now are better stabilized and nothing should be done to destroy the balance.

To select and limit our immigration is not in violation of the historic function of America as a haven of the oppressed of every land. The decline of autocracy and the freeing of the subject nationalities has placed the peoples of Europe in a position where they should be able to work out their own salvation at home. America stands ready to welcome as many from abroad as it can absorb into its life, but does not wish its institutions swamped by unassimilable quantities of alien blood. We want quality not quantity and public sentiment will not endorse any surrender of this policy.

COAL DEALERS' TROUBLES

(From the Boston Herald)

The retail coal dealer also has his troubles. While the householder is shivering with apprehension lest his supply fail, the dealer very likely is sweating from his exertions to meet with the demands of his customers. Boston retail coal men are not able to keep up even with their book-keeping; bills are not rendered in the usual way. Nor can the dealers obtain teams or motors to haul their goods; therefore buyers are coming to the yards with their own conveyances, from wheelbarrows and flyers to touring cars and limousines, and carrying home enough coal in bags "to last a few days, or over Sunday." Snow has been so frequent and the fall so heavy this winter that far more often than usual the driver of the coal wagon has to shovel a way to the cellar window before he can dump a half-ton of precious fuel into the bin.

These conditions all trace back to a single fact. The coal famine made it necessary to ration fuel so that everybody might get a little and nobody get it all. People who ordinarily buy by the ton now get a bag or a bushel at a time; those who normally fill their bins for the season now consider themselves lucky to obtain two tons, one ton, even a half-ton, at once. Thus the delivery service has four times, even six times, the amount of work to do that it has under usual circumstances. Very few dealers are able to meet this emergency with their own delivery outfit and many have trouble hiring either teams or cars. And it takes just as much book-keeping to keep track of a small order as a big one.

The coal dealer this year is between two fires, on the one hand he is striving to get coal and on the other to deliver it. We know these things to be true of some suburban dealers, we believe them to be true of many throughout Greater Boston and all New England.

Another thing we might profitably consider is this—that whereas slush and snow have made the going bad this season, the comparatively mild weather has helped a lot in solving the fuel problem. Suppose the thermometer had lingered persistently far down the tube and coal had been scarce!

It would be impossible to give a comprehensive idea of the paper, for it occupied fully an hour in the reading of it, but it will be preserved by
